NOVEMBER WORKSHOP

IMPA
Indiana Municipal Power Agency

Disaster Preparedness

IMPA is pleased to bring you a workshop on disaster preparedness. When a tornado or major storm hits, the utilities that recover fastest have already decided who's in charge, how outside crews will come in, and what they'll need to document for FEMA.

This hands-on workshop covers utility-focused Incident Command, internal and external communications, and mutual aid and contractor integration, using a tornado scenario and group exercises where participants build an incident command structure and a host utility checklist for effective mutual aid integration.

Participants will also learn the FEMA reimbursement documentation practices that need to start at hour zero, including for mutual aid resources, and will leave prepared to take FEMA's free online IS-100 and IS-700 exams.

Who should attend?
General managers, line superintendents, staging managers, safety staff, finance and communications personnel, and county partners are all encouraged to attend.
